

"Lawnfield," as Garfield named his home, today.

NPS Photo, 1962

GEN. GARFIELD'S TELEGRAPHIC OFFICE.

The little clapboard building at Lawnfield that served as Garfield's telegraphic office during the campaign of 1880.

From W. H. Van Loon, Lawnfield
(N.P., 1962), p.8

The house erected by James Dickey in 1832, which James A. Garfield bought in 1876. Garfield remodelled the house between 1877-1879, making it into a two-and-a-half story building.

Courtesy Lake County Historical Society, Mentor, Ohio.

Garfield's bedroom, Lawnfield.

Courtesy Lake County Historical Society, Mentor, Ohio

Desk and favorite reading chair in President's study at Lawnfield.

From G. E. Van Loon, Lancet

(R.P., 1942), p. 4